60 billion dollar industry in direct costs associated with the health care needed for smokers. Lung cancer directly caused by smoking surpassed all other causes of death in the 1950s and has been though having slowly declined from that peak ever since. And this is just talking about death. Morbidity not mortality caused by smoking is a 60 billion dollar industry in direct costs associated with the health care needed for smokers.

That is one heck of a lot of misery. buy Epogen online in Australia figure doesnt even count all buy epogen online in Australia the indirect costs including loss of man hours buy epogen online in Australia related to smoking breaks and sick days as well as shorter life spans with more time spent on disability. Indirect costs also include the health of the people that live with the person that smokes who have statistically speaking several times more use of healthcare dollars than the average non-smoker living in a non-smoking environment.

So yeah, the better question is why shouldnt you quit smoking. You say well your right I should quit and I have tried several times and I buy epogen online in Australia do it. You dont even know how hard it is to quit smoking. And buy epogen online in Australia reply is for one thing you are right and Im glad I dont know how hard it is to stop smoking, because Im sure that its hard after watching people struggle with it.

I would also say however that giving up is not the answer and for several reasons. buy Epogen online in Australia one thing havent you heard the phrase "if at first you dont succeed, try, try again". This is a natural part of life to have to fight for the things in life that are really worth something. You dont just give up on something, especially buy epogen online in Australia what you buy epogen online in Australia straining for will kill you if you give up, literally.

Would you tell your son or daughter to just give up the fight if they had leukemia because it was going to be hard. No way, and so you cant either.
