At best, since petroleum jelly isnt absorbed by the skin, it provides only a short-term fix for dry, chapped lips. And since it keeps the skin from breathing, it can - if used frequently - actually make your lips more chapped. If youre looking for a lip balm that can actually heal chapped lips you should consider lip balm made with shea butter. Shea butters effect on the skin is different from that of petroleum jelly.

Instead of lying inert on the surface of the buy prilosec, online in Australia it is absorbed by the skin cells. Because it improves the moisture retention capacity of your lips, your lips become buy prilosec online in Australia and chapped much less frequently. In early adulthood, all of our skin cells - including those in our lips - begin to become more buy prilosec online in Australia and less elastic. If shea butter - a substance that both moisturizes the skin and restores the skin cells elasticity - is applied to the lips, then not only are the cells hydrated, but they gradually regain their natural elasticity buy prilosec online in Australia that they are better able to keep moisture from escaping.

Because unrefined shea butter contains both a high moisturizing fraction and an extraordinarily high healing fraction, it is a wonderful agent for revitalizing our skin cells so that they get back their moisture retention capacity. Petroleum-based lip balm doesnt pretend to fix the problem that causes dry chapped lips.
