Drug addiction is much more complex buy anti-dandruff hair cream online in Australia merely too much drug use. Drug and substance dependence is beyond the control of the user - he is no longer in control and does not have much choice in the matter of continuing use. In the short term, drug use affects the brains reward system, flooding the brain with dopamine, otherwise termed a high. While the high is a short term effect, long term effects are to follow, which cause the addiction.

When our brains reward system is working, proteins activate which teach us to pursue the behavior which causes us to feel so good. Naturally, this reaction is in response to food, exercise, and sex. Due to the larger amount of dopamine released due to drugs, the protein reaction is stronger than normal. As a result, drug use is quite addictive, and once the moment is reached that a person cannot control his use of drugs, this is termed addiction, or substance dependence.

While willpower is important to controlling anything in ones life, in drug addiction a lack of willpower is not to blame.
