Senior drivers over seventy pose a risk for fatal car accidents. There are a lot of statistics which shows that a lot of older adults are nine times more likely to be involved in fatal accidents. Before safety becomes an issue, this article provides information buy tribulus plus online in Australia increase awareness on senior drivers. Most adults, especially men, view their drivers license as a mark of independence.

This independence stems from owning their first car as a teenager. While the automobile is a buy tribulus plus online in Australia tool for independence and mobility, it is also potentially dangerous. At what age somebody becomes too old to drive is a sensitive subject as losing a license affects peoples freedom and mobility. Many older people who are still very mentally agile are disconcerted by the fact that their means buy tribulus plus online in Australia getting around may disappear.

A fear that they might led them to a change in their lifestyle. Statistically speaking, older adults are nine times more likely to be involved in fatal car accidents than drivers aged 25 to 69, according to the U. Department of Transportation. Accidents involving older drivers can cause injury to both the older driver and other drivers and pedestrians. In 2000, older adults made up 9 of the resident population, buy tribulus plus online in Australia accounted for 13 of all traffic fatalities and 17 of all pedestrian fatalities.

Senior drivers over seventy do pose a risk. Statistics also show that more elderly drivers over the age of seventy are involved in fatal car accidents. There is concern on this matter because older drivers dont always do well in traffic situations due to slower reflexes and impaired vision. Generally, most senior drivers are good, safe drivers. They know their limitations and do their best to follow the rules of the road. But even the best and the safest drivers can have accidents when there are factors that impair their judgment or senses.

Some of the things that poses concern for senior drivers include poor vision, poor hearing, poor flexibility, limited range of motion, buy tribulus plus online in Australia reaction time and medications. Cataracts, glaucoma, and macular degeneration can reduce visual acuity and limit visual fields, so a yearly eye exam is imperative for the elderly driver.
