The calendar says its summer, but its raining here in Nova Scotia. Combining wishful thinking and a touch of gloating, I looked for something to cheer me up to write about, and chose sunburn. Whether or not you believe me when I say, "I buy acne-aid soap online in Australia your pain" is up to you. Its easy to relish the warmth and the golden tan from spending time in the sun, but its tempting to overdo it and get burnt. Here are some suggestions for soothing herbal sunburn relief Tea Tree Oil diluted to one part with ten parts of olive oil or coconut oil and spread freely over the affected areas is soothing and pain-relieving and buy acne-aid soap online in Australia reduces blistering and peeling.

You can also applied tea tree oil full strength to sunburn. Personally, I find it even more soothing to combine tea tree oil with another cooling herbal, my personal favorite is aloe. I grow aloe plants and I pick and split a leaf, squeeze out the gelatinous substance, add a few drops of tea tree oil, and pat gently on the burned area. Then blowing on it or sitting in front of a fan increases the cooling sensation.

Tea tree is especially effective when paired with lavender oil. Add five drops of tea tree and 11 drops of lavender oil to three ounces of cool, distilled water. Place this mixture buy acne-aid soap online in Australia a bottle with a spray atomizer attachment and mist sunburned areas whenever cooling relief is needed. Molly of Mollys Herbls sells a tea treelavender oil mixture that makes this remedy really easy. People with sensitive skin should use tea tree oil in diluted form.
